Eldracher.
Cleary waved his bat three times without litting anything and sat down. Kerrigan drove the ball to center, but tripped in tring to pecuiate second and found the ball waiting him there. Carr couldn't lid a balloon. Score 3 to 1.
Third luning. Murphy rolled an easy one to Eldracher and was out at first. Pitte hit a hot one through Carr and took second on a passed ball. Stack was cut Carr to Miland. Gallivan knocked a clean this occurrency interesting on a port throw.

Carr to Niland. Gallivan knocked a eleen hit to center, Pitta scoring on a poor three Gallivan took third whits the Hoxbury young men were toesing the beill around. Faircloth was out Carr to Nilaud. Pouncy had a mote in his aye and failed to see three good ones. Glunber shot one to center field and the subsequent proceedings didn't interest one of the spectators any more—the spectators who couldn't get his foot out of the way in time. Stevens was averse to axisting binaself and sat down when three atrikes had been culled. Niland was out on a foul tity to Sullivan. Score 4 to 1.

Miland was out on a foul ity to Bullivan. Beore's to I.

Fuurth inning. Bagley was sale on a bait that rolled toward tidrd at a snall's pace. He was to second on a wild pitch and to third on a short passed bail and wild throw by Cleary. Kiley struck out. Bagley scored on a short passed bail. Stevens clutched Suillvan's bigh tly. Bates landed ona in left. Murphy hit to short, Bates taking third and Murphy second en an over throw of Kertigan's. Pitts was out un a high ity to first.

Fay fanned, Eidracher got in a pretty two bagger. Cleary draw a base on lasts. Kertigan made a hit to centre, Hidracher scoring, Cleary taking third and Kertigan second on throw home. Care coublu't fathom Suiliyan's ourvee. Penney reached first on bails, and Clumbr'a efforts to knock the cover off the ball were futile. A really was out Kerrigas to Minne en some excerjent fielding.

Feuney struck out. Gimber weni out on a slow grounder to Eldracher. Stevens coutdn't make connectiens. Scure B to 2.

Eight inning. Gailivan made the best hit of the game hat failed to touch second and was out. Fairefoth sent to left and reached second before it was returned.
lingley drove one between Carr's legs, Fairoloth going to third. Bujey stole second. Sullivan placed one in left reaching second en poor throw by Fay, lingley and Fairototh crossing the rubber. listes

old. That is the best year for a forest tree.

The nild tree still thrust onliner twigs and leaven in the spring, but site tell that her life was drawing to a cless, for it cost her great suffering to beld herself upright. And because she knew that she must die she felt her love increase for her beautiful daughtee.

Spring was approaching. The branches were still covered with the glittering freet, but the roots began to ment, and the warm wind melted the snew. The rivers and brooks were swelling with melted lee. In the mendows the silvery catkins burst brooks were swelling with melted lee. In the mendows the silvery catkins burst brooks are swelling with melted lee. In the mendows the silvery catkins burst brooks are great of the forest ground.

The old tree spoke to the young: "Tonight comes the violent thaw wind. It will throw me down upon my bed of leaves that I have senttered in the course of time, and I shall $\sigma$ back into the boson ut the mother from whom I came. Yet before I go hemo I will bequeath to you is gift that the gentle lord of the forest bestowed upon nea when long ago he stopped to rest under my branches. You shall understand men's words and deeds and share nike in their fors and sorrows. That is the greetest happiness that can fall to our lot, but be prepared to behold incre sorrow than joy." So spoke the old tree and blessed her daughtee.

es of the sen; it rolled great masses of snow from the mountains that de-stroyed the homes of new la their prog-rous; it reared through the forest, and everything that was old neal weak per ished. But the strong trees resisted it. It struck the old beach tree to the earth wisely bent her head betore the blast, and the great wind swepl on. Three thys the daughler wept sparkling dew tor her mother; then the san came out and dried her tears. Then began everywhere such site and commetion that the beech tree had no time to griere. Her buds swelled and harns and one morning a hundred thousand tremhiling, tender green leaves sprang into the sunshine. That was joy! (tolden yellow printroses climbed trem the ground. They pushed their sliken leaves out into the broad swalight. ted and him hlossoms grew up bround the primroses, and the sweet woodraft meetled its delicale whirled leaves. That was life.

roses, and the sweet woodraff meurical its delicale whirled leaves. That was life.

And in the midst of nll this bloom and fragrance the yeang beech tree stood like a queen. A fluch built her next in her hrancines and a rediscaded wood-pecker paid hee a visit. Once enckoo came and once a distinguished squirred with his hashy tail over his head ran up and down to see if he might not find an acors. But men sie had not yet seen this year, and they would have been the most welcome guests of nil, since sho possessed the power to understand their words and deeds. Afternil, one norming came a slender young girl with her long brown braids, wha wniked through the woods straight to the tree. I knewer, hee vlait did not seem to be for the beech alone. She glanced at the deenying trees on the greund and said, "Here is the spot." Then the set down her basket filled with May flowers and leaned back egainst the beech tree without a glance at its green loveliness.

The tree held her breath to hear without a glance at its green loveliness.

The tree held her breath to hear with the maiden would say, but the pretty one was silent. Presently troug his eposite alde uppeared a strong young man. He were a little round int with a curling feather like a industant. He crept up cantiously—so cantiously that hardly a leaf rust led under his feet. But softly as he stepped the quick ear of the maiden perceived his coming. She turned her head toward him, and the tree thought, "Now she will thy." But the girl did not ty. Instead she eprang toward the youth and three both arms around his brown neck. "My Hanse" "My Far?" they cried logether. Then they kissed each other prasionately, called each other per names, embraced again, and the beech tree found it all again, and he been free man that vary tedions at under the tree and spoke of their leve. It was an eld story they told, but it was all new to the beech tree, and she listened like n child to a fairy tale. It was n wonderful surprise to her. The youth areas trom the ground, free won this kulfo and legan to earva in the bark of the tree. This caused the beech great pain, lett she held as still as n will.

"What is that to be?" asked the maiden.

"A heart with your tumo and mine," "A heart with your mimo mu mine, suswered Itans as he continued to carve. When the work was finished, they both looked at it, well pleased, and the iree was as huppy as it a king had hung a golden chalu upon her "Truly, men ure splendid people," a golden chain upon her "Traly, men are splendid people," thought she.

Now the hanter began to sing. The tree had listened meny times to the song of the finch and thrush, but she heard now for the first time something very different from bird songs. "Listen, Itans," asld the girl when the hunter paused in his song. "Your song reminds me of something. I know—people say—that in the nutuum you go secretly into his woods for game. Let the poschlug ges. The formeter is your enemy. You know why, and if he should meet you poscing in the woods, then—heavenst my Hantel H you should be brought to me with a bullet through your breast."

be brought to me with a ballet through your breast."

The young men bent over the girl, who leaned caressingly on his shoulder and kissed her lips.

"People talk too much. Don't telleve overything they say, sweethear." And is a measured her they went singing through the forest.

When the couple disappeared among the trees, a man in hunter's dress creat from the bashes. The carried his gan on his back and a knite in his belt. His face was white and distorted. He went top to the beech tree and belief the heart that Hans had carried. He laughed wildly and drew out his knife to destrey the writing, then, changing bis rulud, wildly and drow out his kuifo to destroy the writing, then, changing bis mind, he thrust the blade again in his cheult-shaking he first threateningly in the di-rection where the couple had disap-peared, he multored, grinding his teeth. "If I meel you, you poacher, only once on forbidden ground, you will have heard the 'cockoo sing for the last time." With these words he went luto the woods.

And the tree shook her bead sadly.

The beech tree get many a sight of the faces of the children of men in the course of the summer—the peer women gathering leaves or dry bark, the berry plokers, foresters and pldgrims. Hill the most cherished amid the guests who gathered under her berly roof were the

One morning before sunriss, when the meanthlus were just easting off their gray mist cups, Hans came alone. His carried in gun on his shoulder and stepped as lightly through the underbrush as if he would 1-25 his sweetheart by surprise. This lime his coming hed nothing to du with lovely Exa—but the stag comes this way to drink!

At his food of the tree the hunler pansed and stood as undtonless as the beech hersell. The cool morning whal blow, and the mist disappeared in heavy clonds. The gay birdufintered end sang about the stream. The numberlush matted. Hans raised his gun, A shot rang out on the clear air. Hans dropped his gun, sprang convusively into the sir mid fell to the ground. A man strede hastily from the thicket with a smeking gan in his lell hand. The beech tree know him well. The hontaman bent over the murdored man. "It is all over with him," he sald, and taking his gun he vanished into the hashes.

The bright sun rose and shone upon a still form with set white face. Sorrowfally the tree leat over and wept billier tears, and the little robbus flow up and covered the dead face and starting eyes with leaves mult wrigs. In the alterness some woodcutters came that way and found the body.

"the has been shot whila posehing," they said, and taking him gently up they bere his to the distant volley. An old man lingered by the tree. He drew his knife and errors over the heart that has and breathed a prayer. The leaves of the green crest roatted, for the tree prayed, too, in her own way.

For many summers on the anniversary of the death of the marriered man, the malden came to the seat, koet, slown and wept mid prayed, and every time sho war paler, more fragile. One day she did not come, and the tree murmared, "She is dead!" and so it was.

Years passed. The beech had become a trighty tree. He lark was covered with brown most. The bree had been had come. She bore the slag of her dashe war paler, unor fragile. One day she did not come, and the tree knew her time had come. She bore the slag of her dashered had Manue.

Manna is the concentrated juice of severel plants which grow in great abundance in many parts of south Europe, Aoin and Africa. The tree which most generously preduces the is a sort of ash. The juice exudes from the stem during the summer mouths, as a cornequence of the punctures of an insect that infests the tree, but the better kinds of manns, known as "fisks manus," are obtained from lociaious mode in the bark. The poorer qualities come from the bark near the roots of tha tree. The manun of commerce is obtained ehiefly frinu Bieily and Calabria. A visitely is collected by the Arabian Bedonina from a species of tamaris, which is used on bread like hosey. The work is believed to be derived from the Syriae mann, a gift, though there to little own the time medical substance sow knewn by that uame has anything in common with the mutual mentioned in the travels of the Israelites.

If you happen to have nitrate of sool a some gardeners like ourselves are never without it, scatter a little of it, say a pound or two to the square red, broadcast over the ground when the plants are still small. The application will help kohl-radi as well as it does cablages.

Celery plunts ought to be passive as energetically as frequent stirring of the soil, early and severe thuning mid applications of nitrate of sods or liquid fertilizers can do it. The writer of the foregoing tells in American Gardening how he makes his early celery bed. It is 12 feet who and 150 keet long, slightly raised in the couter. The rows are ten inches apart, and the plants stand five inches in the roys. A line of two inch tile is laid from four te cight inches deep cight in the center, the whole length of the bed. The bed has a slight slope. Water for irrigating is hauled in a hig barrel on wheels, and suptied into a box connected with the tile drain at its uppec end. In a porous loam the widerable resistance the irrigation tile lines ought uot to be more than four feet spart. It is believed their each of irrigation live laid right under a row of cucumber, melon or squash hills would make it quite easy to insure, it any kind of season, very superior oud heavy

The adners of CRIPPLE CREEK are sore to make a great many med wealthy this year. The district is now producing nearly $1,000,000 per month. Mr Stratton, who, two years ago was acricing at his trade as carpenter, is now taking $1,500 per day not of his fridependence mine and has reloced $1,000,000 for his property. Of course you cannot get an interest in Mr. Stratton's mine or any other mine like it Such stocks are not for sole. Vour outly chance is to get an interest in some good solic that is not producing at present, but above prospects are brilliant. Such an opportunity we offer you in the Eclipse Mining and Milling Co. They owe seven full tode claims and a placer ground of one hondred acres, all located at CRIPPLE CREEK, COL. Their outlook is very surcorraging indeed. Mines that are now MONANEAN did not show up as well at the same stage of development. We must raise some money, and offer a limited amount of stock at 12 cents on the dollar, or 12 cents per share.

Far $12.00 we will send yan 100 shares, par value For $120 we will send you 1,000 shares, par value

This stock is absolutely non-assessable. You will never be asked to pay another cent on it. They are liable to make a strike at any moment, when, of course, the stock will immediately go up. Books by these authors I never venture to open, even lu the grentest dearth of reading unaiter. Besides I eagerly welcome nverything published by the latest journals and look through each weekly and monthly periodical that I come across in diding or waiting room. That is why I have a succession of fragments of a considerable number of stories in my head, and as ther leastification does not obecoming in the suppose of the second of the considerable in the suppose in the suppose in the suppose of the considerable suppose in the suppose of the second of one to the beginning of the other. Some of these dovotailed siorles please me quite as well as the noted novels of famous mathers.

playground, where she appeared with her tnother, during an laternission, to see her brother. It was whiter. The yard was fall of snow, and a flerce battle waged between the opposing factions late which the school was divided. At the moment when I saw her at the entrance to the playground, a harder snowball hit me on the head, so that I fell down unconscions. A few minutes after, when I sgain came to myself, I was sitting apon a chair in the perfer's room, and both ladies, the mother and sister of my friend, stood near and regarded me anslously.

ladies, the mother and sister of my friend, stood near and regarded me ans lously.

"The next morning she caused inquiry to be made after my health through Jacques, and on the following Bunday I called upon her. I spoke no word. I would willingly have thrown myself a knousand times into fire or water to again draw upon me the solicitous glance of the beautiful maiden.

"In the evening I have a thrown myself a thousand times into fire or water to again draw upon me the solicitous glance of the beautiful maiden.

"In the evening I have the decay wherewith I would fain have uroused her astonishment and compelled her admiration. Anything clse I neither desired nor expected. The unconscious dawn of love in the heart of youth belongs with its peculiarities only to pure childhood.

"The young heart is foolishly happy in sacrifice, quietly content and shilledly conceited and vain. It cannot yet love, it meeds but to be loved and admired; to bestow happiness is not its object, and the only joy it knows is a blissful unrest) its only need, to receive love without bestowing it. In a firer years one gives which urreceiving and is very well off with that. So everything in the world is arranged in the best manner, where there are people who that their joy in giving, and others who are lappiness in receiving.

"But how short and sweet is the one thus when one gives without receiving and is very well of with that. So everything in the world is arranged in the best manner, where there are people who that their joy in giving, and others who are lappiness in receiving.

"But how short and sweet is the one thus when one gives and receives, when one love and is ladoved I have known of the world is arranged in the best manner, where there are people who that their populations in receiving.

"But how short and sweet is the one thus when one gives and receives, when one loves and is beloved 1 I have known it, but she who then unade me so heer, pessibly happy has now left me. How beantiful was the world when Peaw it with her; how blue the heaven; how soft the air! We hastened, hand in hand, from place to place, and wherever we went, laughingly joy stepped forth to greet us, begging us to linger. We went haughing, singing, rijoleing along, assured effour good fortune overywhere. "Somethness our rictons delight, overstepping all bounds, startled sober people. But the stern glance softened when it rested upon us: "They are young. Let then enjoy themselven," said the old, and went along sorrowfully milling. She clung so tigbily to my arm, she mustled so closely to my side, has I thought I could agree lose her. The ldea of a passible change never came to me, never troubled me. Thas I lived a long time. Weeke, months, years flow hy, and I heeded them not.

"One evening, after wa had spent the day yet-viacre madly and merrily than awal, she saddenly appeared to me discontented and cold. A terrible fear which I am not able to describe fell upon me. An ley celduless erept over me. "She will leave you," said I to myself, "certainly, surely, she will leave you," said I to myself, "certainly, surely, she will leave you. It occurred to me how little I had really concerned myself about her, how I perhaps had expected too much of her truth and constancy. For the first time I fell my trust in myself and in her waver, and ansionsly I gazed line her eyes. But her glance turied wearly from me and gave me to answer.

"My rest was gone, my life no more the same. It is true she still pressed me impetuously to her besom again and again, but the sweetness of her kish had vanished. Often she pashed me celdly nway, and I saw to my muittenile sorrow that my love wearied her. And when I once at a later hour returned home, tired and dejested, I found the room dark, cold and capity. She, my joy, my ligd, my all, had vanished.

"Now began a miscrable existence for me. The less that I had suffered ganneed in tuy heart, but my core was to cenceal this less from the world. I cudeavored to show a cheerful, happy countenance. I sought the seeledy of gay young respect I bestowed great much litherto muknow and ribleuled care apon my person and toilet. My enendes said of me that I had for a long lime ronged in creder to hido the paleness of my checks. That is not true, but I may as well confess that I bought a little flook of newly invented themer that was le restore the color of youth to my whitening lair.

"This hypecrilical farce did not long time no more. I know that my deveks. That is not true, but I may now well confess that I bought a little flook of the strife, and today the uphnion of the world true-bles me no more. I know that my deveks.

'Tis as Sure as Taxes.

The miners of CHIPPLE CREEK are sure to make a great array men wealthy ibis year. The district is now producing nearly $1,000,000 per month. Mr Stratton, who, two years ago was working at his trade as carpenter, is now taking $1,000 per day out of ids Independence min and has refused $1,000,000 for bis properly. Of course you cannot get an interest in Mr. Stratton's mine or any other mine like it. Such stocks are not for sale. Your only chance is to get an interest is some good indust we offer you in the Eclipse Mining and Milling Co. They own seven full lode claims and a placer ground of one hundred acres, all located at CRIPPLE CREEK 4. 491.

Their cottook is very encouraging indeed. Mines that are now BISNANEAN disk not show up as well at the assum stage of development. We must raise some money, and offer a limited amount of stock at 12 cents on the dollar, or 12 cents per share.

Fac $12 00 we will send you 100 shares, par value Foc $120 we will send you 1,000 shares, par value This stock is absolutely non-assessable. You will never be asked to psy another cent on it. They are liable to make a strike at any moment, when, of course, the stock will insucediately go up. We, therefore, do not consider ourselves bound by this offer for more than ten days after its last appearance.

Stock will be forwarded inmediately upon receipt of money.

We refer to Union National Hank, Denver, as to our reliability. Remittance may be made to aborn bank or to us direct.

Rosy complexioned and in her fresh spring toilet, she was truly beantiful. Under her long silky lashes her azure eyes had a soft carcestag light that tilmmed her face with kladdiness. The form, though somewhat slender, was well modeled, and the lines of the neck set off all the attractiveness of a head encircled by a profusion of blond locks. This was the beautiful and general Paoletta, (diorgio's young wife. In a carriage the aswiy weddet pair were proceeding rapidly along the zun filled river bank, thinking of some way of employing the day.

By and by sha noticed that a large spider cause out of his larking place to listen to her. Joined by a long and alen-der thread to the back of a mirror, he got himself well in evidence apon a dec-crated cornice, with his keen eyes, his long legs and remained humovable, as if bymotised by the soft harmonies of Chorin.

If hypnotized by the soft harmonies of Chopin.

Paolette gradually ceased to fear him. But when to this great spider were added accessal others she resolved to remove this large family, demonstread modes for a number of years. She called in a carpenter to take down the introduaghing to see the tribe exampering.

Buddenly she intered a cry of surprise. Wrapped inpas ha in net, invested with a great mass of cobwebs, in letter senied with hinck fell from behind the mirror.

senied with black fell from behind the nirror.

The workman, no less asyrrised than the young lady, presented the letter to Paoletta, who took it, trembling. On the outside she read:

"To be delivered to Signer Giorgio Derval after my death."

The young wife's heart beat fast. This letter was directed to her busband. What could it contain?

"It must have been written a long time ago," said the workman.

"It is directed to my busband," responded Paoletta. The man smiled musingly.

aponded Paoletta. The man smiled musingly.

"A letter from a woman," he thought. Should she burn this letter nuopened? What might it contoff? Should she give it to Glorgio?

No, no; cortailly not. After a leng time she broke the seal, and this la what she read:

"My dear Glorgio, I am sick and sad. The house is a prison. I seem to find in the law is a letter of the law is a prison. I seem to find in the law is a prison. I seem to find in the law is a prison.

of the raliway train, the hilaricus shouts of the children released from school. Was what had passed a dream, seme strange faney? No, the letter was there at her feet. It resulted her to reality. It was true—all was true! And suddenly she felt within her heart an enormous weight, and upon her shoulders something laid almost insupportable.

She remained for a long time motion-less and stient, making a thousand projects. Then gradually her nerves gave way and tears flowed from her eyes. When Glorgio returned, he found her calm, bat a little nervous.

Several days passed, then Positetta took to her bed.

A malady which had not been able to carry her to the tomb a year before reappeared. The physician amounced most all was over; she would not outlast the fall of the leaves.

She treated Glorgio with coldness, of which she gave no explanation. He attended her, watched over her, supplicated her to tell him why she had changed, hat she remained sheat, and her calmness ande him almost insane.

One morning she said to bim, "You will return early today, will you not, Glorgio?"

Ho hent over her, kissing her tenderly.

"Yes, my darling," he said. We only take orders at these prices that allow us the privilege of immediate delivery.
